Students must also be aware of network etiquette and security considerations when using email and the internet. There is a section in OCA's Student Regulations about online etiquette (point 17). In addition there is a Data Protection and Confidentiality Policy appended to the Student Regulations. OCA takes these issues seriously. Data protection rules forms part of OCA's Conditions of Enrolment. In addition to the information located in our student documentation OCA is developing short videos to explain netiquette and online security.

*This requirement may be waived, on rare occasions, by the Head of Learner Support if negotiated prior to the start of the course. Typically, exemptions are only given to students with specific disabilities or to those studying in prison.

English language requirements

All students need to have an appropriate standard of English to complete their chosen course of study, which will include a substantial written element. Section B - Course Overview

The BA (Hons) Painting degree offers students the opportunity to gain knowledge and understanding of Painting as a creative, technical and intellectual activity.

Painting Practice - The content of the course is based on the understanding that studio practice is an ongoing learning process which requires engagement with, and knowledge of historic and contemporary approaches to painting. Students are encouraged to take risks and to become reflective practitioners, learning from uncertainties. Each assignment provides the opportunity for students to engage with increasingly demanding material and technical approaches underpinned by the study of relevant artists, art forms, movements and methods.

Critical Studies - Practical projects for each assignment are set within relevant conceptual and contextual frameworks, and throughout their studies students engage in reflection-on-practice and the development of a learning log. The learning log also contains elements of the Critical Studies element; visual and textual research into the field involving written critiques, essays, project commentaries and self-assessment and reflection, as well as analysis of the contemporary art world and their position within it. Learning logs and sketchbooks/developmental work are inter-related and support the practical work submitted for each assignment.

This disciplined approach to the planning and documentation of a students' own learning is seen as a crucial interplay between practice and theory and essential to ideas generation. As students progress through the degree, practice and writing become mutually dependent; the creative work underpinned by their developing knowledge and understanding, with new questions arising in and through painting, viewing, reading, writing and analysis of contextual influences.

The journey from beginning to end of the degree culminates in comprehensive knowledge of the mediums, techniques and contexts of painting. On completion, students will have gained:

- A high level of skills and technical knowledge across a range of approaches to Painting
- A breadth of knowledge and understanding of historic and contemporary contexts and concepts within Fine Art/Painting practice
- A wide range of transferable skills, including communication of ideas through visual, verbal and written means, enabling them to operate successfully in the complex and changing field of Fine Art today.

The aim of the Open College of the Arts is to offer an environment that gives distance learners the ability to fulfil their creative potential. This is achieved by providing a highly structured but flexible programme of study. The distinctive nature of the BA (Hons) Painting degree is its emphasis on learning traditional technical skills as well as arming students with the intellectual skills needed to further their career in the arts, or to continue onto post-graduate study.

Section C - Course Aims

1. To ensure students demonstrate proficiency in a comprehensive range of painting practices and techniques
2. To develop students' creative, and critical capacities and their ability to reflect on, interpret and evaluate their own and the work of others and to communicate this to others
3. To develop students' theoretical, conceptual and contextual understanding of fine art, the practice of painting and contemporary debate in the discipline.
4. To foster inventiveness, risk taking and reflection as a method of learning, to develop a personal language as a painter
5. To equip students with professional and transferable skills to sustain a practice

Section E - Learning, Teaching and Assessment

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategies

The Open College of the Arts offers all students the same quality of core learning experience, and supports a broad range of student expectations and needs through its open and flexible learning environment. The OCA provides high quality and stimulating learning materials and resources to meet the needs of students learning at a distance, and adopts learning strategies that help students develop the skills necessary for autonomous learning.

The core offer consists of

- learning materials
- one to one feedback and support from a named tutor
- support materials (such as guides on aspects of study)
- access to dialogue with peers via the OCA student website
- learner support for any difficulties with the practicalities of studying
- library resources (such as the UCA library with a range of electronic resources within the discipline, and Bridgeman Education Art Library)

In addition to the core aspects of study, students may access the following on an ad hoc basis:

- study visits (eg to exhibitions) in different parts of the country organized via the OCA Student Association (OCASA)
- current creative arts reviews and discussion via the OCA blog

Other teaching strategies at particular stages of the course include

- Peer exchange
- One to one meetings with tutor via Skype or Google Hangout

PDP

Personal and professional development has been linked to all levels of the course through the learning log to help support students to plan, integrate and take responsibility for their personal, career and academic development.

The log is used as a tool for self-reflection to document and reflect on progress, and to reflect on tutor feedback. In dialogue with tutors through formative feedback, students are encouraged to identify strengths and learning needs, and establish learning goals that might improve perceived weaknesses and enhance strengths.

Individual units at levels 5 and 6 have outcomes that specifically relate to skills transferable to the workplace, through engagement with client led or self-initiated projects located in external contexts or that are public facing in some way. The learning at level 4 supports this engagement through a process of identifying opportunities relevant to student's needs, goals, and ambitions.

Independent Learning

The Art and Design Benchmarks say that: 'Active learning through project-based enquiry has always been a feature of the art and design curriculum in higher education. Through this approach students have been encouraged to develop both the capacity for independent learning and the ability to work with others.' Through the OCA model of distance learning units, providing projects and research activities, students learn to study independently, while backed up by tutor support, and learn to work with others by interacting with them, providing and receiving support and exchanging ideas on the OCA forum.

Communications

Communication between OCA, tutors and students is predominantly via email. We are encouraging the use of Skype for tutorials, as this can enliven the interaction between tutor and student. Peer communication takes place in the student forums, or via comments on the WeareOCA blog or other student blogs.

Delivery

Open tuition: Students work from the unit materials and send regular assignments to their tutor, normally by email. Tutors then review each assignment and provide written feedback. There are typically 5 assignments for each unit, supplemented by projects. Students agree the length of time they will take over each section of the unit with their tutor, and agree an approximate time when they will submit their assignment. This varies from student to student, but typically the timing of delivery of assignments is between 8 and 12 weeks. Students are also able to contact tutors informally between assignments (subject to reasonable limits). In addition to the formative feedback received from the tutor, students can submit their work for formal (summative) assessment at OCA at one of three assessment events that take place each year, and are required to complete their unit within two years.

Tutor reports are copied to the OCA head office and subject to periodic review to ensure standards are being maintained. These reviews are conducted on a rolling programme, with tutor reports reviewed by course leaders and The Director of Teaching and Learning Quality. All new tutors have their reports monitored by both staff for the first six months, and mentoring is provided. Subsequently reports are looked at during each formal assessment event, in conjunction with student work and feedback is given to tutors, where necessary. If any cause for concern about a tutor's reports is raised, the tutor is closely monitored and mentored for a period.

Unit materials: The written unit materials have been specifically produced for distance learning delivery and are designed for individual self-study. They consist of subject-specific learning content and a series of learning projects each culminating in an assignment, the results of which are discussed with the tutor. The unit materials contain a balance of practical exercises and large scale projects and research tasks/points

Study Skills Guides: There are guides on keeping sketchbooks, writing learning logs, study skills, and keeping blogs, among others. All of these are sent to the students at the beginning of the programme and are also available as downloads from the OCA website.

Reading Lists: The BA Painting programme has a comprehensive study list composed of key texts, journals and websites for each unit. In addition to this, items are added to the study list as new recommendations are received and items published. At higher levels, when students undertake their own projects, reading lists are negotiated with tutors.

Costs for additional materials/resources

As a general rule of thumb, students pay for their work to be sent to OCA, and OCA pay for it to be returned (where applicable). Costs will vary according to the size and nature of the student work, and how much can actually be done electronically. Rates for overseas students will be higher.

Approximate additional materials/resources costs for the Painting course at Levels 1 and 2 are £500-£700 each which could increase to £850-£1000 for Painting at Level 3.

Blogs: Blogs are maintained by students as public versions of the learning log. Their public status allows opinions to be expressed by fellow students, or the general public if desired, on the work being produced. Being accessible to other students, they offer a wide range of interpretations of unit projects to be seen, read and commented upon by others, allowing learning to take place through social activity centered around a programme of study. If maintained as a learning log, the address of the blog is submitted at assessment time, instead of a physical learning log.

Web forums: OCA has a dedicated website for students with the following features: online resources, discussion forums and portfolios for individual student's work.

The student forums represent the main method of communication between students and their peers. Concepts are discussed and knowledge developed through debates that are informally moderated by OCA tutors. Critiques of work, both in development and completed, are sought from peers through the forum.

The student portfolios support the forums by providing an area for work to be uploaded to, and linked to, from the forums and their blogs.

Online learning: Each unit has a number of web-based resources designed to broaden students' appreciation of the range of practice and contemporary debate on the discipline. OCA students have access to the V & A image collection and use of the Creative Commons on Flickr as well as access to the Bridgeman Education image library, from which they may download images for comment, or to include in learning logs. Students are encouraged to keep learning blogs if they have access to the internet, so that they can share their reflections and learning online with other students, and discuss these with others on the OCA forum.

Formative and diagnostic feedback: Ongoing guidance and formative feedback on assignments is given by the student's tutor and offers clear guidance with regard to future development. A copy of each tutor feedback report given to the student is logged with OCA in order that OCA can monitor tutor quality and performance.

Employability

The OCA is fully aware of the importance of degrees having a relevance to the world of work. However, the context for an employability audit is different for the OCA than it is for a traditional campus based HE provider. The main reason is that only 6% of our students are 24 and under and hence in the traditional 'first degree' age group (contrasted with just under 30% who are aged 55 or above).

OCA places greater emphasis on skills and technical development than some art college based degrees (where creativity in a less contextualised environment receives a higher priority). As such, we are confident our degree units will be effective in equipping students with the skills relevant to the world of work. Individual units at higher levels all have outcomes that specifically relate to skills transferable to the workplace.

Assessment

Assessment methods: There are no examinations. Assessment is through the examination of personal development planning and continual reflection in learning logs or blogs, practical projects, critical reviews and essays. Assessment tasks are linked to the objectives of each unit. As the student progresses through the unit the assessment increasingly encourages autonomous learning and self-evaluation. Tutors provide feedback during the unit, with constructive criticism, and assessment takes place once the student has completed a unit in full. Students are assumed to be planning to enter for assessment unless it is identified at the beginning of the unit that the student does not have this aspiration. The personal tutor works with the student to advise them on the assessment process. The student uses OCA guidelines to prepare a portfolio complete with sketchbooks and learning logs (or blog) to send to OCA for assessment. This submission includes the summative assignments of each section of the unit. Assessment takes place three times per year.

Section F - Enhancing the Quality of Learning and Teaching

The course is subject to the University’s rigorous quality assurance procedures which involve subject specialist and internal peer review of the course at periodic intervals, normally of 5 years. This process ensures that the course engages with the applicable national Subject Benchmarks and references the National Framework for Higher Education Qualifications. In addition all courses are monitored on an annual basis where consideration is given to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ External Examiner’s Reports ▪ Key statistics including data on retention and achievement ▪ Results of the Student Satisfaction Survey ▪ Feedback from Student Representatives Enhancing staff development OCA is committed to enhancing staff development. Subject specific tutor training workshops are held annually at the OCA HQ in Barnsley, which focus on team building, updating tutors on new developments, and training – including sessions on improving the quality of feedback, and practical exercises in evaluating student work. Communications with tutors is via a monthly Tutor Newsletter and a dedicated Tutor area on the student website. Improving the effectiveness of student learning We are committed to developing units, improving existing units, introducing technologies for enhanced interaction (such as Google +) and improving the effectiveness of student learning. We also regularly monitor tutors’ reports to students and offer guidance and mentoring (the Director of Teaching and Learning is responsible for this) if the reports need improvement. OCA have been trialling online tutor-led structured discussions via Google hangouts and using other technologies at HE Level 6, and plan to mainstream this activity in the forthcoming academic year. Learning log: As part of the coursework on OCA programmes, students are required to keep a learning log. This is an important tool in developing their creative practice, recording their growing understanding of the subject, and provides a platform for ongoing reflection. For degree, diploma, and certificate students, the log is considered as part of the assessment process and contributes towards the final mark. The exact content of the log depends on the unit.
